FOREST PROTECTION.

LAWS FORBIDDING THE DESTRUCTION OF TIMBER IN EUROPE.

Governments Have Supervision Over Private as Well as National and Communal Forests—Reforestation Carried on by Established Departments.

In Germany the various governments own and manage, in a conservative spirit, about one-third of the forest area, and they also control the management of another sixth, which belongs to villages, cities and public institutions, in so far as these communities are obliged to employ expert foresters and must submit their working plans to the government for approval, thus preventing improvident and wasteful methods.

The other half of the forest property, in the hands of private owners, is managed mostly without interference, although upon methods similar to those employed by the government, and by trained foresters, who receive their education in one of the eight higher and several lower schools of forestry which the various governments have established.

The several states differ in their laws regarding forest property. Of the private forests 70 per cent are without any control whatever, while 30 per cent are subject to supervision, so far as clearing and devastation are concerned.

The tendency on the part of the government has been rather toward persuasive measures. Thus in addition to buying up or acquiring by exchange and reforesting waste lands—some 300,000 acres have been so reforested during the last 25 years—the government gives assistance to private owners in reforesting their waste land. During the last 10 years $300,000 was granted in this way.

In Austria, by a law adopted in 1852, not only are the state forests—comprising less than 30 per cent of the total forest area—rationally managed, and the management of the communal forests—nearly 40 per cent—officially supervised, but private owners—holding about 32 per cent—are prevented from devastating their forest property to the detriment of adjoining. No clearing for agricultural use can be made without the consent of the district authorities, from which, however, an appeal to a civil judge is possible, who adjusts the conflict of interests.

Any cleared or cut forest must be replanted or reseeded within five years. On sandy soils and mountain sides clearing is forbidden, and only cutting of the ripe timber is allowed.

In Hungary, also, where liberty of private property rights and strong objection to government interference had been jealously upheld, a complete reaction set in some 15 years ago, which led to the law of 1880, giving the state control of private forest property as in Austria.

Under a law adopted in Italy in 1885 the department of agriculture, in co-operation with the department of public works and in consultation with the forest committee of the province and the respective owners, is to designate the territory which for public reasons must be reforested under governmental control.

The owners may associate themselves for the purpose of reforestation and for the purpose may then borrow money at low interest from the State Soil Credit institution, the forest department contributing three-fifths of the cost of reforestation upon condition that the work is done according to its plans and within the time specified by the government.

In Russia until lately liberty to cut, burn, destroy and devastate was unrestricted, but in 1888 a comprehensive and well considered law cut off, so far as this can be done on paper, this liberty of vandalism. For autocratic Russia this law is rather timid and is in the nature of a compromise between communal and private interests, in which much if not all depends on the good will of the private owner.

A federal law was adopted in Switzerland in 1876 which gives the federation control over the forests of the mountain region embracing eight entire cantons and parts of seven others, or over 1,000,000 acres of forest. The federation itself does not own any forest land, and the cantons hardly 100,000 acres, somewhat over 4 per cent of the forest area, two-thirds of which is held in communal ownership and the rest by private owners.

The federal authorities have supervision over all cantonal, communal and private forests, so far as they are "protective forests," but the execution of the law rests with the cantonal authorities under the inspection of federal officers. In France not only does the state manage its own forest property, one-ninth of the forest area, in approved manner, and supervise the management of forests belonging to communities and other public institutions, double the area of state forests, in a manner similar to the regulation of forests in Germany, but it extends its control over the large area of private forests by forbidding any clearing except with the consent of the forest administration.—Century Magazine.

FRIDAY, MAY 25, 1894.

THE INCOME TAX.

Senators Hill, Gorman and other prominent Democrats join Senators Sherman, Lodge and other prominent Republicans in opposition to an income tax, showing that on the question of taxation as well as of finance there is no difference between Democratic and Republican leaders.

Governor Penneyer of Oregon, who was elected as a Democrat in a State that for years had a large Republican majority, differs with those gentlemen on the income tax question. He says no fairer system of taxation could possibly be devised than that of taxing incomes. Under that system a man pays for the support of the Government according to his ability. Under the present system a man pays taxes on what he eats, drinks and wears. A laboring man, not worth a dollar in the world, with a family of five persons to support, pays nearly five times as much as his bachelor neighbor worth a million. It is indeed most astonishing that such an unjust mode of taxation could be tolerated among an intelligent people. Under an income tax a man pays according to his means; a system which has the sanction of both common sense and honesty. The Romans twenty-four centuries ago changed their system of taxation from a per capita tax to a tax laid upon citizens commensurate with their ability to pay and the American people should follow their just example.

Instead of attempting to refute the arguments of Governor Penneyer the goldbug papers refer to him as a crank. They apply that term to everybody who dissents in any way from the decrees of the gold combination and think it a sufficient answer for all arguments, however reasonable they may be. They foolishly fancy that the people believe that every person who dissents from the views of the combination and advocates a change in the financial policy of the Government that will relieve distress and restore prosperity is of unsound mind.

AN EXILED CUSTOMS OFFICER.

D. M. Cashin was one of the customs officers in San Francisco four or five years ago. He was sworn and paid to prevent importers from defrauding the revenue by smuggling or under-valuation of goods. He was theoretically in favor of protection, and contributed regularly to the campaign fund of his party. He descended upon the advantages of high tariff, was conspicuous in political meetings and apparently one of the most patriotic Republicans. As principal appraiser of silks, woolen and cotton goods, he conspired with certain merchants, who were importing such goods, to defraud the revenue, while publicly proclaiming protection was privately promoting free trade for a share of the spoils. How long he had been violating his oath and enlarging his purse is not known, but one day, owing to the carelessness of a drayman, it was accidentally discovered that packages of goods which Mr. Cashin had appraised as cheap cottons were high priced silks and wools. He fled to British Columbia and there remains in exile.

Now the news comes that Mr. Cashin desires to return to California and is endeavoring to get the California Senators and Representatives in Congress to have the proceedings against him dismissed. He is anxious to get back, but the fear of an indictment found against him in the United States Court deters him. The jury might be disposed to give him his just deserts and restrain him from participating in San Francisco politics for some years, so he will not venture back unless the Attorney-General of the United States orders the indictment against him quashed.

A CONGRESSMAN ON THE INDUSTRIALS.

Representative Davis of Kansas made a careful estimate of the number of Industrials and Commonwealers on the way to Washington. He says there are over 5,000 men tramping or riding on boats and trains toward the Capital. He does not believe in the wisdom or efficacy of the movement. The remedy for the present condition of affairs he believes is in the ballot box, which he defines as "recorder opinion."

Mr. Davis says that by oppressing the leaders of Coxey's Army the authorities have made "swans out of their geese." The chief danger from the movement will develop when the weather becomes too cold for the army to camp in the open air. Trouble may reasonably be apprehended at that time. The estimate of Mr. Davis, if correctly reported, is far below the actual number of Coxeyites on the road. At least 2,000 Industrials have left California for the East, but probably not one-fourth of that number will attempt to reach Washington. Many of those were young men who came to this coast under the impression that gold could be picked up in every ravine and that chunks of silver could be dug out of every hillside. Those men having discovered their mistake took advantage of the Industrial movement to get back East, and many of them declared while here that they had no intention of going to Washington. It is probable that the number on the way to the National capital does not exceed the estimate of Mr. Davis, but there is certainly five times as many in the various contingents of the Industrial Army.

The Changeling, true to its instincts, had some characteristic articles in its columns last evening. It suggests ex-Congressmen Woodburn and Bartine for delegates to the Republican League Convention at Denver. Only eighteen months ago it opposed the election of Mr. Woodburn, who was the nominee of the Republicans, for Congress, and on alternate days opposed and advocated Mr. Bartine's candidacy for the Senate. Three months ago on the occasion of Senator Jones' visit to Nevada it had only honeyed words for him and inaugurated a midwinter campaign to impress him. Now, because he would not be impressed and stultify himself by joining the Wall street combination, it makes it appear that the Senator is of very little consequence. It sees the most intelligent men in the Republican party deserting it because of its blind devotion to the gold trust, and angered by the sight is, if that is possible, more inconsistent than ever before.

NATIONAL IRRIGATION CONGRESS.

A Contest as to Where It Shall be Held.

The National Irrigation Congress, which met in Los Angeles last October, decided to hold another session within a year from that date. The selection of the place for holding the next session was left to the National Executive Committee, which consists of twenty-one members, one from each of the arid States and Territories and two at large, the latter being William E. Smythe, Chairman, and Fred L. Alles, Secretary of the Committee. Only two cities have complied with the requirements. These are Carson, Nevada, and Denver, Colorado. Carson offers $1,600 and Denver $1,500 to be expended in advertising. Both cities agree to provide a convention hall, rooms for committees and stenographers to take a complete record of the proceedings.

Chairman Smythe now calls for votes to determine where the convention shall be held. In a circular letter to the members, a copy of which has been received by General J. E. Jones, the member for Nevada, Mr. Smythe electioneers strongly for Denver, and uses his influence unduly for that city. He says he and Secretary Alles have voted for Denver, and while he does not absolutely request the other members of the Committee to do so, he indicates his preference for that place in many ways, and while he admits the force of the arguments advanced by General Jones in favor of Carson, he endeavors to counteract their effect by methods which a person occupying the position of Chairman of the Committee is scarcely justifiable in resorting to.

A Sign of Better Times.

When everybody is hoping for the return of better times, each straw that shows the wind to be blowing from that quarter, is worthy of special notice. There is no barometer so reliable as the demand for goods. Nobody buys stock for fun or for appearance.

Our advertisers the Charles E. Hires company, of Philadelphia, transact business over a very wide field, dealing in every city, town, village and cross-roads in the country. They report that the sales of Hires' Rootbeer so far this season in excess of the same period last year. When it is remembered that their annual sales have before this reached the enormous total of 2,880,278 packages, which equal more than a gallon for every family in the country, it would seem at first thought that there is little room for further growth. Thirst for it, however, seems to be universal, as this year's report shows a very large gain, indicating ere long who does not drink Hires' Rootbeer will be somewhat of a curiosity.

No temperance beverage has ever anywhere nearly approached Hires' Rootbeer in popularity. Its wonderful success can be accounted for only on the ground that it is just what the manufacturers claim—an honest extract of nature's most healthful roots, which slakes thirst, improves health, and pleases every member of the family. Its remarkable sale certainly proves that millions enjoy Hires' Rootbeer.

Joined the Silent Majority.

Mrs. J. M. Fulton yesterday received the sad news of the death of her father, Mr. McArthur, which occurred at his home in Minnesota after a brief illness. Mr. McArthur was a native of Ellensburg, Scotland, and 81 years of age. He emigrated to Canada about sixty years ago, and thence to Minnesota. Mrs. Fulton, who is an estimable lady, has the sympathy of many friends in this community in her bereavement.

Congressional Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Senator Kyle's resolution declaring against any effort to restore the Queen of Hawaii was taken up this morning and discussed. Unanimous consent was asked to put it on passage. The tariff bill came up as unfinished business and the resolution went over.

The House Committee on Public Buildings decided to erect a new building on the site of the present Post-office. It will cover the entire block and will be ten stories high.

While the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy fast mail was running at the rate of fifty miles an hour near Kewanee, Ill., the glass in the lubricator broke and the oil falling on the hot boiler set the cab on fire. Fireman Martin's clothes caught fire and Engineer Giddings applied the brakes and stopped the train. Martin jumped in the water tank to extinguish his blazing clothes, and the engineer rolled on the grass for the same purpose. Martin was easily if not fatally burned, while Giddings escaped with a burned hand.

Only the Scars Remain.

"Among the many testimonials which I see in regard to certain medicines performing cures, cleansing the blood, etc.," writes HENRY HUDSON, of the James Smith Wooden Machinery Co., Philadelphia, Pa., "none impress me more than my own case. Twenty years ago, at the age of 18 years, I had swellings come on my legs, which broke and became running sores. Our family physician could do me no good, and it was feared that the bones would be affected. At last my good old mother urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I took three bottles, the sores healed, and I have not been troubled since. Only the scars remain, and the memory of the past, to remind me of the good that Ayer's Sarsaparilla has done me. I now weigh two hundred and twenty pounds, and am in the best of health. I have been on the road for the past twelve years, have noticed Ayer's Sarsaparilla advertised in all parts of the United States, and always take pleasure in telling what good it did for me."

For the cure of all diseases originating in impure blood, the best remedy is Deserving Praise.

We desire to say to our citizens that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. S. J. Hodgkinson, druggist.

Each bottle is guaranteed to do all that is claimed or money will be refunded. Trial bottles free at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store. Large bottles 50c and $1.
